Churchill Urges Unity

FRENCH-GERMAN FRIENDSHIP IS URGED IN TALK

Former British Premier Asks For United States Of Europe In Speech

ZURICH, Sept. 19.—Winston Churchill today appealed for a partnership of France and an unarmed Germany as the cornerstone for the organization of a United States of Europe.

Churchill said Germany must be deprived of her power to re-arm, but must be welcomed back into the forefront among the European family of nations.

The wartime premier warned in a speech at the University of Zurich that Europe still was in great danger, and the atom bomb might eventually disintegrate the entire world.

"In these present days," Churchill said, "we dwell strangely and precariously under the shield and I will even say the protection of the atomic bomb."

He made a strong plea for French-German unity.

"This way only can France recover the moral and cultural leadership of Europe," he said. "There can be no revival in Europe without a spiritually great Germany."

Hopes Russia Will Aid
Proposing a council of Europe within the United Nations framework, Churchill said, "Britain and, I trust, Russia must be prepared to play a part."

He insisted that Germany must be deprived of the power to rearm and the guilty punished.

"But when all this has been done, there must be an end to retribution."

"The time may be short. At present there is a breathing space. The fighting has stopped, but the dangers have not stopped. The atomic bomb is still in the hands of a nation whom we know will use it in the cause of right and freedom."

Praises America
"Indeed, but for the fact that the great republic across the Atlantic has at length realized that the ruin or enslavement of Europe (Continued on Page Two)

YOUNG TRUCK DRIVER ESCAPES HURTS IN CRASH

Gerald F. Stevens, 17, Route 1, Laurelville, escaped injury at 7:30 a. m. Thursday when the truck he drove struck an automobile and turned over three times on State Route 56, one mile east of Circleville.

State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour said that Stevens was proceeding west and that the truck crashed against the car of Charles Garner, 37, cook, 215 West Water street, which Garner said had stalled on the highway. Approach of another car, Stevens told Patrolman Ridenour, made the collision unavoidable. The highway patrolman said both vehicles were badly damaged.

Archbishop Arrested By Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Sept. 19.—The Yugoslav government made elaborate plans today for the expected war crimes trial of Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac, leader of 2,000,000 Croatian Catholics, which many officials believed may create more international interest than the Mikhailovich trial.

(Pope Pius XII dispatched Msgr. Joseph Hurley, bishop of St. Augustine, Fla., from Vatican city to Belgrade to investigate Stepinac's arrest. Hurley is acting apostolic nuncio to Belgrade.)

Stepinac was under arrest in an undisclosed place, facing indictment on charges of "crimes against the people and the country." The 48-year-old Archbishop was expected to make a strong defense.

Special preparations for press coverage of the trial from Zagreb already were underway. It was learned officially that arrangements for correspondents and photographers will parallel, or perhaps exceed, the elaborate facilities made available for the treason trial of Gen. Draza Mihailovich.

Official announcement of the charges against Stepinac came unexpectedly. As head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia (Continued on Page Two)

GROUP URGES STATE TB SETUP

$15,900,000 State Control Program For Next Two Years Recommended

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—A $15,900,000 state tuberculosis control program for the 1947-48 biennium was recommended today in a report of the joint committee on tuberculosis appointed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Lausche said the recommendation would undoubtedly have to be considered when the legislature meets in January.

The program contemplates a construction of five hospitals that contain 1100 beds at a cost of $9,300,000, state subsidy of county programs at a cost of $6,500,000 and an appropriation of $100,000 to the health department tuberculosis division.

The committee's report submitted by chairman Dr. Carl A. Wilzbach of Cincinnati said an estimated 36,092 cases of tuberculosis were present in Ohio in 1945.

X-ray surveys have revealed that from eight to 14 cases of clinically significant tuberculosis are present in the state for every death caused by the disease, the committee reported.

In 1944, 2754 Ohioans died of tuberculosis. The disease was the leading cause of death among persons from 12 to 35 years of age, according to the report.

The report recommended that a 300-bed hospital be built at Columbus to work in cooperation with Ohio State University as a teaching institution. No sites were (Continued on Page Two)

REPORTS SAY AMERICANS WITH PEASANT ARMY

CENTRAL LUZON, Sept. 19.—At least three American GI's and perhaps several AWOL's, deserters and escaped prisoners have sought sanctuary from military authorities and are living with Hukbalahap armed peasant squadrons in central Luzon, it was learned today.

U. S. Army authorities estimate that 500 GI's are absent without leave on Luzon island and that approximately 300 of them still are in greater Manila.

Only three members of the U. S. armed forces are known to be with the Huks. They are with the 29th squadron of the Hukbalahap army, which is roving through municipalities in Tarlac and Pangasinana provinces.

FEW SURVIVE CRASH OF BIG BELGIAN PLANE

Wreckage Of Trans-Atlantic Airliner Located In Uninhabited Area

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Wreckage of the missing Belgian trans-Atlantic airliner has been found and there are some survivors among the 45 persons aboard it, the Sabena airline said today.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Sept. 19.—Wreckage of the missing Belgian airliner was sighted today in uninhabited country about 25 miles south west of Gander airport by aerial searches.

Searchers dropped supplies near the scene but were unable to say immediately whether there were any survivors.

A relief party was formed and started immediately for the scene. An announcement made at La Guardia field said Newfoundland civil aviation authorities reported the wreckage had been identified as the missing DC-4 of the Sabena line.

The wreckage of three airplanes was sighted during the search for the Giant, four-engined DC-4, enroute from Brussels to New York, which vanished early yesterday after radioing the Gander field control tower that it was going to make an instrument landing at the fog-shrouded airport. Two of the wrecks were identified definitely as old ones. The third "apparently was new," the Coast Guard report said.

It was sighted at dusk and a 200-foot ceiling made positive identification "questionable," the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard planned to land a search party on a nearby lake and send it overland to the scene.

The plane was operated by Sabena (Societe Anonyme Belge d'Exploitation Aeronautique), a newcomer to the trans-Atlantic run.

There was no doubt that the plane was down in what may be the worst disaster in commercial aviation. Sabena officials in New York expressed hope that it had (Continued on Page Two)

BURGLARS TAKE $65,000 HAUL FROM CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Sept. 19.—Burglars early today cut their way through a wall of the Parkway Savings & Loan company here, broke into the vault, and escaped with $65,000 in cash.

The theft was discovered shortly after 9 a. m. when the first employees arrived for work, found the wall broken open and brickwork scattered around.

Police said the loot was the largest amount to be stolen here in many years. They believed that the burglars may have used crowbars and sledgehammers to smash away the wall adjoining the vault.

The burglars hacked their way first through the wall to gain entrance to the basement, then apparently burned a hole in the wall-type vault with acetylene torches and carried away the money.

The bank was held up in 1939 by two gunmen who obtained $200 in nickels resting on top of a safe. However, the trio missed $17,000 which a few minutes before had been locked in the vault.

SEARCH ABANDONED
NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Coast Guard announced today that the air search for survivors or wreckage of the Norwegian tanker Marit II, which split in two off the North Carolina coast in a hurricane last Friday, was abandoned last night after a thorough six-day search had failed to disclose a trace of the ship or the 16 persons believed to have perished with her.

Son Slain in Error

ENRIQUE SANCHEZ DEL MONTE, above, one of Cuba's leading cattlemen, confessed to police that he hired the killers who murdered the 16-year-old son of Dr. Joaquin Martinez Saenz, president of the ABC political party. Del Monte told police he paid $6,000 to three gunmen to kill the boy's father as revenge against Saenz for helping his wife get a divorce, but that the killers shot the son by mistake. Restaurants Take 'Holiday'; Meat Shops And Packers Forced To Close

By United Press
Restaurant shutdowns spread today as restaurant associations fought the roll-back of prices on meats containing meat.

This severe shortage of beef and pork already had forced many meat packers and butcher shops to close. Restaurants protested that the new OPA price order prohibited their making a profit even if meat were available.

All 26 cafes in Oskaloosa, Ia., closed and 60 others shut their doors at Fort Dodge, Ia. Shutdowns were scheduled soon in five other Iowa towns and the state restaurant association predicted the situation would spread across the state.

In Iowa City, location of the University of Iowa, 35 restaurant owners voted to start a "holiday" next Wednesday in protest against the OPA order returning meat meal prices to June 30 levels.

Cafe owners said they would be closed "until further notice," which will force about 4,000 university students who originally patronize downtown restaurants to get their meals elsewhere.

Rep. Gerald W. Landis, R., Ind., protested to price administrator Paul Porter that "in the face of increased food costs and short labor supply restaurants could not (Continued on Page Two)

95 PERCENT OF RESTAURANTS IN OHIO MAY CLOSE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19.—Robert R. Williams, executive secretary of the Ohio State Restaurant Association, said today that a statewide canvass of restaurant owners indicated that 95 percent of the commercial eating places in Ohio may close if OPA insists on the price roll-back.

Williams said an early check pointed towards widespread shutdowns of restaurants. He said the statewide poll had not been completed.

He added that OPA officials in Washington had informed him that OPA might relax or rescind its rollback order if it could be proved that the order would work too severe a hardship on restaurants.

Williams said injunction proceedings would be filed in federal district court here to halt the rollback order if OPA insists on its maintenance.

WALLACE WILL MAKE NO TALKS FOR CAMPAIGN

Secretary Refuses To Speak After Truman Quiets Him On Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace has refused to take part in the Democratic congressional campaign unless President Truman permits him to discuss foreign policy, the United Press was informed today.

Wallace silenced himself on all subjects after rejecting Mr. Truman's proposal that he address the voters on domestic issues only. His speaking engagements have been cancelled until the end of the Paris peace conference.

Within minutes after that temporary adjustment of the cabinet crisis had been achieved, the White House made public a joint letter from the secretaries of war and navy sharply challenging either Wallace's facts or his veracity.

Deny Statement
Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Secretary of Navy James Forrestal wrote that there was no truth in Wallace's statement published Wednesday that a school of military thought advocated immediate attack on Russia—before the Soviets can obtain atomic bombs. The fact that the White House made the Patterson-Forrestal letter public was in itself a presidential rebuke to Wallace.

Mr. Truman met Wallace yesterday in a two and one half hour White House conference. It was assumed then that Wallace would remain in the cabinet. But no more than a truce has been obtained in the cabinet crisis which confronts the President. He still is in the middle between Wallace and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes although the showdown has been postponed, perhaps until after the elections.

President Opposes Talks
When the secretary of commerce met with Mr. Truman at the White House, the president objected to Wallace's anti-administration foreign policy speeches during the critical Paris peace talks. The two men met at first alone, the United Press was informed.

Mr. Truman told Wallace he wanted above everything to have him remain in the cabinet but that his speeches were disturbing a very delicate situation in Paris. They also were disturbing Byrnes who was expected to resign if Wallace continued.

Mr. Truman said that if Wallace would avoid foreign policy speeches it would be in the national interest. (Continued on Page Two)

TWO NEW TIRES FOR EACH AUTO ARE PROMISED

AKRON, O., Sept. 19.—Rubber industry spokesmen predicted today that two new tires will be produced for every auto on the road this year.

Guy Gundaker, Jr., sales manager of the B. F. Goodrich Company, said production of passenger car tires for replacement sales alone will run between 53 and 54 million units this year, at "a conservative estimate."

This, he said, is equal to two tires for every auto on the road today.

Tires still will be scarce this Fall, he said, but with the industry turning out replacements at half again as high as 1941 consumption and 175 per cent of normal pre-war demand, "it won't be long before tires are considerably easier to obtain."

GAMBLE REWARDED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Ted R. Gamble of Portland, Ore., the man who headed the government's multi-billion dollar bond drives during the war, today received the civilian medal of merit for his "selfless devotion to the interests of his country."

LEWIS OPPOSES CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers (AFL) today asked the price control board to remove OPA meat controls "to insure an adequate coal supply."

The Issue Is Settled, He Hopes

FOLLOWING A TWO HOUR and twenty minute conference with President Truman, Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace waves to waiting newsmen outside the White House and states that he is remaining in the cabinet but will make no further foreign policy speeches until the foreign ministers conference in Paris is concluded.

House Committee Urges Large Army In Pacific

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Members of the house military affairs committee charged today that Russia is seeking actively to spread Communism throughout China, Japan and Korea, and called on this country to maintain a powerful military arm in the Pacific.

They issued their appeal upon returning from a six-week inspection tour of American military bases in North America, Australia and Asia.

Rep. John E. Sheridan, D., Pa., acting chairman of the investigating committee, said long-range bombers traveling at or faster than the speed of sound would be the mainstay of future U. S. military defense.

"Jet propelled bombers have been developed which can be based in the United States and will reach almost any point in the world," he said. "These planes, called super-sonic bombers, travel at the speed of sound—more than 1,000 miles an hour."

He expressed belief that "there will never be another army moved across a big body of water."

Sheridan said major American bases would be on the U. S. west coast and in Alaska and Hawaii. But, he added, the United States must cooperate with Australia in operation of nearby bases as the southern anchor of defense chain.

Reps. Dewey Short, R., Mo., and Thomas E. Martin, R., Ia., agreed with Sheridan that adequate bases must be maintained, but said this

WYATT WOULD HELP NON-VET HARDSHIP CASES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt wants to open five per cent of his veterans homes to non-veteran "hardship cases," it was learned today.

Evicted families would be the principal beneficiaries. Ex-servicemen, who now are entitled to first crack at virtually every house built, would continue to claim the remaining 95 per cent.

Wyatt put the proposal before his veterans advisory committee yesterday. The group failed to reach a decision and postponed a vote until a labor meeting, delaying action at least a month.

The five-man advisory group previously has okayed hardship permits for non-veterans who are physically handicapped, for former civilian prisoners of war, and for some college professors.

SHOES TO GO UP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—OPA today boosted tanners' ceilings on sheepskin leather by 26 per cent. This paved the way for retail increases on shoes, leather jackets and other apparel made of this type leather.

SHORT TRUCE IN FOREIGN POLICY DEBATE SLATED

State Secretary Undecided On What To Do About New Turn Of Events

DELEGATION IS QUIET

Byrnes Reported To Be Sure Americans Will Back Up His Paris Program

PARIS, Sept. 19.—President Truman today conferred with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes by trans-Atlantic telephone, it was learned tonight.

Byrnes appeared to be in good spirits after the talk. Nothing was said here as to the nature of the conversation but Byrnes had let it be known that he was not satisfied with the "moratorium" on foreign pronouncement by Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace.

The telephone call to Paris was placed by Truman. A spokesman said the call was "fairly lengthy". A Byrnes spokesman denounced rumors Byrnes would fly back to Washington as "silly".

Byrnes, it was learned, is full of confidence that his version of American foreign policy will come out on top in any contest with Wallace.

However, it was understood, he fears that the moratorium on Wallace declarations reached in the White House discussion between Wallace and President Truman will confuse other nations.

He was said to feel that foreign countries would wonder what American policy might be when the moratorium ends and the grand debate resumes, hammer and tongs.

Make No Comment
Byrnes made no official comment on the situation. Nor did Sens. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., and Tom Connally, D., Tex. It was understood that the senators who are advising Byrnes at every step counseled him against taking any precipitate action.

American delegation sources cautioned correspondents against speculation that Byrnes, Vandenberg or Connally might return to Washington.

The reaction to speculation that one of the trio might go back to the capital to find out what the score is was that the situation here already was bad enough without making it worse.

Byrnes remained in his hotel suite where he was described as spending "a lot of time thinking."

Blow To Byrnes
There was an atmosphere of expectancy around the delegation but there was nothing official to indicate that any event was anticipated.

Byrnes' associates were not able to conceal the fact that the crisis has been a tremendous body blow to the secretary. It was said that he unquestionably feels that no matter what happens it will be most difficult for him to regain his previous stature as a spokesman for American policy.

SOLON CHARGES COMMUNISTS IN FEDERAL JOBS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Chairman Jennings Randolph, D., W. Va., of the house civil service committee charged today that "Communists and other totalitarians" have infiltrated the federal civil service to pry out secret information for foreign governments.

"Our committee feels this is a problem of serious proportions and that it is growing progressively worse," Randolph said in an interview after a consultation with President Truman. "These groups are trying to infiltrate wherever the information is."

Randolph, who has never been considered a "red baiter," stressed repeatedly that he was not calling for a "witch hunt," that his charges were based on a study made by his committee prior to congressional adjournment.

"I do not like to be an alarmist but these groups are well-organized and cleverly handled and the government is without adequate protection," he said.

CIO MARITIME STRIKE GOES ON

56,000 Auto Workers Idled By Disputes; Another A-C Walkout Ends

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Federal Arbitrator James L. Fly today announced awards of wage increases to the National Maritime Union (CIO) ranging from $5 to $10 monthly which he confidently predicted would provide the basis for ending the 14-day shipping strike.

By United Press

The CIO maritime strike remained deadlocked today, while labor disputes in the automobile industry kept 56,000 workers away from Detroit area production lines.

In other labor developments:
1. Disruption of telephone service at Houston threatened to spread throughout Texas.

2. A 156-day strike was settled at the Springfield, Ill., farm equipment plant of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company.

3. Negotiations were continued in an attempt to end a work stoppage which has halted production at the Gary, Ind., sheet and tin mill of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp.

Fifteen ships manned by non-striking AFL crews left New York harbor yesterday, the first to weigh anchor in two weeks. But the CIO shipping strike continued with no sign of an early settlement. The walkout has tied up 75 per cent of the nation's merchant fleet.

Circleville, O.

STATE HEALTH DIRECTOR HITS RIVER PROBLEM

City of Columbus Scored For Pollution Of Scioto River For Miles

During recent years several Pickaway county residents have filed suit against the city of Columbus on the contention that waters of the Scioto river between Columbus and Circleville have been polluted by sewage.

The Pickaway countians heard with satisfaction, Thursday, that Dr. Roger E. Heering, state health director, in a report submitted Wednesday to the Franklin county board of health, declared that the pollution of the stream constitutes a health menace over an area extending more than 13 miles south of Columbus.

The report resulted from a two-year investigation of the stream by Dr. Heering at the request of the Franklin county board of health and a group of citizens of Hamilton township, Franklin county.

Dr. Heering's report said, in part: "Sewage from the city of Columbus discharged into the Scioto river has so corrupted the river as to give rise to foul and noxious odors and to conditions detrimental to health and comfort."

Describing the requirements in sewage disposal at Columbus to be "as severe as any known instance in the country", the report said:

"The shortcomings are chiefly matters of capacity and do not reflect any discredit to the type of plant, to the process of treatment, or to the operation of the plant generally."

Dr. Heering's report further asserts that the river for 13 miles south of Columbus is "grossly" polluted 10 per cent of the time over a period of several years. In 1944 the pollution was "gross" one-third of the time, the report says, and a similar condition prevailed for 176 days during 1945.

The report criticized the Columbus city council for delay in expansion of the Columbus disposal plant.

River pollution suits against the city of Columbus now total $672,000 and most of the suits were brought by Pickaway and Franklin county land owners whose properties border the Scioto river.

CHURCH MAKING SLOW PROGRESS IN SOVIET ZONE

German Churchmen Complain Unofficial Russian Actions Hurt

BY CHARLES P. ARNOT
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 19—High German church officials complained today that religious re-education and church activities in the Russian occupation zone are being hampered by unofficial measures of the Russian military government and even more by the Communist-dominated Socialist unity party.

The difficulties between the church and the Soviet military administration, one high official of the Evangelical church said, had increased to such an extent during the last few weeks that some type of showdown must be expected shortly.

Most church officials were frank to admit that the religious revival in eastern Germany had been disappointing. Among the many reasons they cited were:

1. Misery of the German people and their feeling of utter hopelessness — even the impression among some that "God has forsaken us."
2. Non-cooperation of Soviet occupation authorities.
3. Dire financial condition of the church and clergy.

"The people are bitter with the occupation, especially with the progress of the expected democratization," one high Evangelical church official said.

"They are pessimistic regarding the future, and they do not see how the church can help them much," he added.

Physical exhaustion from hard labor has slashed church attendance, the official declared, adding that "on Sundays they only want to sleep and forget."

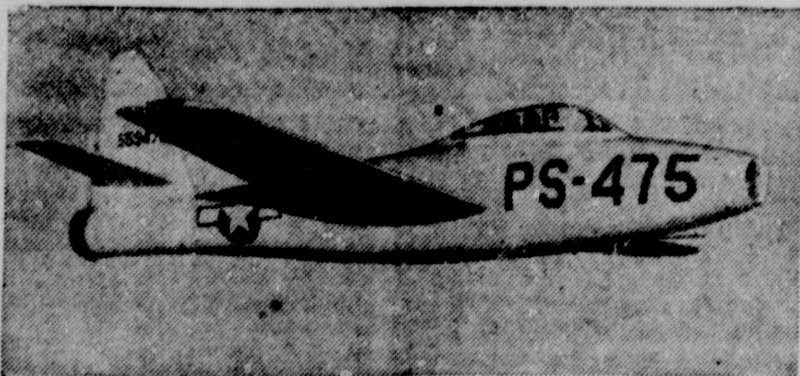

These are some of the complaints Evangelical church officials voiced in the Russian zone:

1. Because of their jobs, most workers have little chance to attend church services.
2. All church welfare work is slowly, but steadily, being suppressed by prohibitions.
3. The Russians are attempting to use the Evangelical church for propaganda purposes by requesting pastors to praise the land reform (Bodenreform) program from the pulpit.
4. On the other hand, they are hindering free church services by ordering the texts of all church addresses to be translated into Russian and submitted to local commandants 24 hours in advance of delivery.

REPORTS SAY 7 OF 10 STATE U. S. STUDIES PATROLMEN ASK FREEZING ORDER HOUR REDUCTION

NANKING, Sept. 19—Reliable but unconfirmed reports circulating in Nanking said today the United States might consider freezing war surplus shipments to China "temporarily" in an effort to halt the civil war.

Observers believed such action might revive Communist interest in the stalemated peace negotiations. Chief Communist negotiator Chou-En-Lai has said repeatedly that the sale of U. S. war equipment to China was prolonging the fighting. He left Nanking Monday for Shanghai after Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek rejected the Communist demand for a "cease fire" order as the No. 1 condition for continued peace negotiations.

POLICY TALK

OUT of the welter of comment on Secretary Wallace's speech in relation to the foreign policy stated recently by Secretary Byrnes, comes one principle upon which there is wide agreement.

This is no time to take any chances on confusing foreign governments about America's official intentions.

Free speech is not the issue. This country has it and will continue to protect the expression of opinions of American citizens.

But a cabinet member has a far greater responsibility than the average citizen. He belongs to the highest circle of government, and when he speaks publicly on affairs of government, it is assumed that he speaks with high authority unless a different or lesser significance is frankly given to his speech.

The fact that the President inadvertently gave Mr. Wallace the go-ahead sign on the speech that upset the State Department's carefully planned program further lowered American prestige in European eyes.

International relations are so delicately poised that slight things become magnified to major issues. The United States has been slowly and painfully working to build up a foreign policy that would have some stability and force and command the respect of the rest of the world.

If contrary opinions are to be expressed publicly by high government officials it should be clear in advance with what authority they speak. And if they speak for the United States, it behooves them to get together with those responsible for policy making.

POTATO PULP

THE old quest for ways to turn waste products into byproducts goes on, and every once in a while a really bright idea turns up.

In a year when this country has so many potatoes it doesn't know what to do with them, the North Dakota Research Foundation comes forth with an inexpensive method for turning potatoes into stock feed. They're ground to a pulp, dried, and, presto—there's the feed at a cost of about a cent a pound. Inferior potatoes not good enough to sell as human food will be fine for the animals after going through this process.

Thus the potato farmers can have a new market to sell to, and a new source of feed.

NEWSPAPER ADS

A Chicago mail order house spent $11, 130,000 last year in newspaper advertising, a period when space was curtailed by newsprint rationing. This figure represented 79 per cent of the total advertising in all media used by the firm and about one per cent of the sales total, which amounted to over a billion dollars' worth of goods.

As the firm operates 604 establishments in 47 states, its large use of newspaper space must be taken as one more indication that this form of advertising brings the most customers.

With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—The ghost of the late Harry B. Smith, who was Victor Herbert's favorite librettist and lyricist, must have gotten a hearty laugh at the Century theater after seeing what the people who put on "Gypsy Lady" had contrived to replace his "out-modern" stuff.

Much had been made of the fact that the producer, Edwin Lester, was trying to rescue Herbert's music from burial with the "hopelessly dated books" for which it had been written. He hired Henry Myers to write a new story which was "to be a modern, light, tongue-in-cheek treatment of the stock period opera story." If that description fits the product that is "Gypsy Lady," then something has happened to the meanings of certain simple English words since I learned them.

Actually, of course, there is no Herbert Smith work named "Gypsy Lady." That's a new title Lester thought up to cover a work that stems from the Herbert-Smith operettas "The Fortune Teller" and "The Serenade," which were done in the last decade of the nineteenth century. The music and some of the story derive from these two works.

I couldn't find a thing in the book that couldn't have come straight from the pen of Smith. I became convinced that Myers had worked in a losing cause early in the evening when one character said "who's coming," received the answer, "he, he, he, he," and admonished his informant to stop laughing.

If there was any satirical treatment of the operetta form, I missed it. The story is about how a Gypsy maid, who wants to be a lady, is palmed off on a title-seeking family by a matinee idol, who decides at the last moment that he wants her himself. But she goes back to her Gypsy sweetheart, which serves him right for waiting around two acts.

Nor was the acting any improvement over the musical comedy posturing and mugging of years ago. If this, too, was supposed to be satirical, it didn't come off. You'd never have known that the staging was in work of two bright young men whose memories can't possibly go back that far. These two also furnished new lyrics for songs for which Smith had provided the original words. However, they didn't tamper with "Romany Life" and "Gypsy Love Song." Lester must have figured that it wouldn't be safe to alter these classics.

Secret and illicit angles or understandings with unscrupulous persons might undermine position, labor, business, the most cherished, devoted or sentimental relations. Keep alert to pitfalls and snares. Adhere strictly to duty and principle, shunning expediency. Those whose birthday it is may come upon an unrecurrent of the illicit, sinister, confused, or alluring, beckoning into pathways of illusion, delusion, treachery or glamor, upsetting straightforward thinking and sound fundamental principles, greatly to the detriment of very promising and cherished hopes and wishes in which the peace of the private life and the security of business or professional bases are menaced.

Well-organized strategies, sound adherence to principle, personal duty and devotion might bring real progress and enduring happiness.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—The British rather did us on the art matter—and I mean, deucedly did us. They have sent over five million dollars of Constables, Hogarth and Turners to be shown in Chicago and New York which will really make a show. Nothing has been said about it, but the opportunity is plainly a return favor for American enterprise in sending over to London a presentation of American paintings last Spring.

Such exchanges are all good work, and I do not wish to criticize anyone leading himself to noble efforts, but it was glaringly noticeable the American selections were what might be termed "representative" of American art. This is to say they represented just about the worst that is in us as well as the best. Well, maybe not the worst, but certainly some justly obscure works. It was wisely chosen but on the wrong premise. Although our best art was considerably represented by the brush business of Wood, Eakins, Homer, Hopper, Benton, Bellows, Speicher, Brooks, Inness and many another, the shipment included lots of lonely works few know. It did not look like $5,000,000, although it contained 250 pictures. (The British politely sniffed at it.)

My complaint is that the man in Mayfair or Main street will look at the two shows and conclude, as always in the past, that British art is great and our product suffers by comparison. Now this is not true. Our art today is much better than the British. They must go back to Constable, Hogarth and Turner to present their best polished foot forward, while we send them a homely cross section, a foot without wings and with spotty shining.

This is the way the British manage to require the public to conclude their products are always the best in the world. Our publishing of our efforts has run too much to the type of thingamabub art in which the rich are being currently hoodwinked. You may see this almost any day in the Museum of Modern Art, where the gilded rich sit in a lovely grandeur on a gorgeous board of directors and present to the public (for a small admission fee) certain products which would bring no sale in a toy shop. I have in mind the wire workings of a nimble wit who made seals and undecorative gadgets out of a single strand of wire, and darned if Moma did not put everything he did on pedestals and call it art. This was entirely in keeping with some of its permanent art which includes works which could be entitled "horse sniffing hay through his feet," or "gosh, what I think of on a dark night." Picasso's x-ray of what he claims is a woman, in three or four positions at the same time, is considered great work there, under the sponsorship of the rich, and the rich just love it.

The best comment on the Museum of Modern Art ever offered was given the other day by Gertrude Stein in her death. She loved abstract commercialism in art, as practised by Picasso (a great artist who went commercial in abstractionism half-way in a brilliant career, but not practised by him in his superior 1906 portrait of Gertrude Stein. All during her life she encouraged the sale of undecipherable monstrosities by artists who could do better if the cash wanted something good, or even knew what was good, but she did not encourage Picasso to do her in three positions at once—or to give an x-ray view. She got from him a real portrait.

A Peek Into Your Stomach

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ANYTHING which helps a doctor to find out more quickly and more surely just what is troubling his patient is a boon to both of them. In 1932 an instrument which helps take some of the guesswork out of the diagnosis of stomach disorders was invented. It is called the flexible gastroscope.

Its great usefulness lies in the fact that for the first time in history, it enabled the physician to look directly into a patient's stomach and examine with his own eyes its lining membrane, without resorting to surgery.

Recent Report

A recent report by Dr. Fred A. J. Geier of the Georgetown University School of Medicine, who during the past 10 years has examined almost 300 patients with this instrument, shows just how valuable it is.

In every instance, the patients had been given other examinations, including x-ray studies, so that the finds through the gastroscope could be related to those obtained by other means. He found that the use of the gastroscope was of great value in about one-third of the patients and was helpful in another 50 per cent.

In one-fifth of the patients the gastroscopic examination was of no help. Not only is the gastroscopic of help in telling one type of stomach disturbance from another, but it is also advantageous in making it possible to observe directly all types of chronic stomach inflammation, in following the progress and healing of ulcers of the stomach, and in determining whether or not a stomach cancer might be operated on successfully.

It also can be used to decide whether or not a tumor or ulcer is of the dangerous type, that is, cancerous, and, also, in locating the exact spot from which bleeding of the lining membrane of the stomach may be occurring.

When Not Valuable

There are certain conditions in which the gastroscope should not be used. These include any blocking of the esophagus which leads from the mouth to the stomach, dilated veins in the esophagus, heart failure, conditions causing shortness of breath, fever, and high blood pressure.

Of course, it requires some practice on the part of the physician before he is able to recognize correctly the different conditions of the stomach. Ulcers as a general rule, can be easily seen. The ulcer appears round or oval and its base is a brilliant yellowish-white or yellow color. In those instances in which the base is bleeding, it appears red.

There is apparently no danger in using the gastroscope even though bleeding from the stomach has recently occurred. Used together with the x-ray, gastroscopy makes it possible to diagnose many stomach conditions with great accuracy and thus permit prompt and proper treatment of any condition which is present.

For Thursday, September 19

WHILE there are excellent promises of felicitous productive and a generally gratifying state of affairs, in which intimate matters of home, social, and romantic life are primarily concerned, yet an undercurrent of the intriguing, bewildering, confusing and sinister may prove perilous to best-laid plans.

Secret and illicit angles or understandings with unscrupulous persons might undermine position, labor, business, the most cherished, devoted or sentimental relations. Keep alert to pitfalls and snares. Adhere strictly to duty and principle, shunning expediency.

Those whose birthday it is may come upon an unrecurrent of the illicit, sinister, confused, or alluring, beckoning into pathways of illusion, delusion, treachery or glamor, upsetting straightforward thinking and sound fundamental principles, greatly to the detriment of very promising and cherished hopes and wishes in which the peace of the private life and the security of business or professional bases are menaced.

Well-organized strategies, sound adherence to principle, personal duty and devotion might bring real progress and enduring happiness.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

"DID you have breakfast?" Barry demanded.

"Coffee."

"That's all? You must be starved. This has all taken time. You're a crazy little thing," he said roughly. "You have no sense at all."

Abby said, "I tried to eat."

The dining room, and the early sun, and her father appearing unexpectedly. He never appeared at breakfast—why today? Sitting there remote and withdrawn, looking at her now and then. Craig, yawning a little, looking apprehensive. Her toast crumbled on her plate, her orange juice untouched, the smell of eggs making her sick.

"Okay," Barry said. "So you tried. Next town we come to we'll stop for lunch. Come closer. I'm an excellent one-arm driver. I've had," he said proudly, "practice."

"Don't tell me about it," said Abby.

"Why not? No details, no chapter and verse."

"Sometime," she said, "not now."

She thought, Sometime, when I am sure, after we are married. Sometime. Then I can ask him . . . Who was the first girl you fell in love with, who were the others . . . what did they look like, what did they mean to you? When did you know that this one or that was not the one you really wanted? Sometime I can ask her. What were you like when you were eight and when you were twelve . . . what excited you, what depressed you? Tell me about your schools and the boys you knew . . . tell me about what happened to you in camp here . . . and in Italy . . .

The next town had a frame hotel, with verandas on the street and across the second story. It was late, they were alone in the dining room except for a gaunt waitress, her gray hair incongruously caught in a fuchsia-colored snood. The soup was cold, the lamb was aged mutton, the mashed potatoes sodden lumps; the coffee couldn't have been worse, and the pie had soaked through its shiny, tasteless crust.

Barry said, "It's a legend, you know."

"What is?"

"That all New England cooking is good."

She said, smiling a little, "Mine's good, and New England."

He said, "It's almost too much for any man to ask . . . a girl who looks like you and who can cook. Shall I ever tire of looking at you? Wasn't there a poem something like that? . . . Your hair," he said, "it lights up this room, like a beacon."

"But doesn't," she suggested, "warm the potatoes."

"Who cares? Eat something. Anything. The bread's not bad," he told her, "nor the soda crackers. And the pickles are very good. Abby, this is going to be wonderful. How uninteresting to marry a girl you have known all your life or with whom you have shared a long engagement, or even one you have known six weeks, a month, a week . . . nothing new to learn . . . or," he said, smiling, "not much . . . except, of course, the less agreeable discoveries they tell us we all make, after marriage, whether the foreknowledge has been long or short."

She said gravely, "I shall never discover—the disagreeable."

"Don't say it," he said, "you begin to frighten me. But take this hypothetical girl—by now I'd know her handicap at golf, her pling-pong record, her taste in clothes, perfume, theater, books, music . . . and if she were allergic to poison ivy, mother-in-law, shrimp, or preferred Scotch to bourbon . . . whether mysteries kept her awake nights—or if she put herself to sleep with essays and biographies. I know nothing about you, Abby, really. You hold endless possibilities. You can swim," he said, smiling, "but what else . . . ride? shoot? fish?"

She said, "I ride . . . I play golf, passably. I don't like tennis much. No, I don't shoot . . . and I've not been fishing since I was a child."

"Well," he said, "I can see where I'll have to start you, from scratch . . . on a liberal education. Very liberal."

She said, her heart lifting, "I can at least take you on a tour of art galleries. I'm good, really . . . it should be most educational."

"Wonderful," said Barry. "And when they ask me, 'What's your wife like?' and I say, 'Oh, utterly unlike, I assure you, but she knows her way around art galleries—'

He broke off. "Abby, I can't believe it," he said.

"I can't either."

No, she could not. It was like living in another world, it was like looking through a door into still another, new-minded, strange, disturbingly beautiful.

Barry overtopped the waitress, who waited in the kitchen and informed a moody, incredulous cook that a couple of movie stars had stopped in for lunch. No, she didn't know who they were, but she was sure to heaven she'd seen 'em sometime or other.

They drove on and reached, after too short a time, the entrance gates of the Wallace house. Here they parked, having made their plans. Abby walked up the driveway, in her plain little shirtwaist frock, her bright head uncovered, her small, scuffed shoes light on the gravel. What she had to do was not too difficult. She had five days in which to pack her things, to be sent on later, to pack a suitcase with immediate needs . . .

For Pete's sake, don't stagger out to meet me with 15 pieces of luggage; there are shops at the hotel; you can buy what you need there to tide you over," he had said.

In five days, with the suitcase ready, she would wait at the driveway. Mrs. Gambel would help her. She was a dour, reliable woman. They had always liked each other. When she reached the big hall it seemed very cold, and seemed dark. She blinked against the darkness, her eyes accommodating themselves slowly. She had reached the stairs when her father asked if you were here. When I said no, she inquired if Mr. Lambert had been. He added, with some satisfaction, "I took the call."

Abby said, "I had forgotten there were to be luncheon guests."

"Naturally," said her father, "in your present state." He added, "I have put Craig to work on the problem of our reservations."

"Reservations?" she repeated blankly.

Wallace said impatiently, "Really, Abby, you are impossible. Craig told you that I was planning a trip. I think a change would be quite beneficial for us all, at this point," he added.

She asked carefully, "Where are we going . . . and when?"

Wallace shrugged. He said, "Traveling is certain at a moment's notice. But I have selected Pinehurst, and I hope we can leave in, approximately, a week's time."

He was watching her closely. Resentment or astonishment or both were expected of her. She tried to register and convey these convincingly. She said, "But when Craig spoke to me about it I didn't say I'd go."

"You have no choice," said Wallace smoothly. "I am giving the staff a holiday, as we shall be gone six weeks. Jay remains behind to work on the catalog, but a local woman will come in daily to clean and cook for him. Except for her—"

Abby was not listening. Six weeks? She thought, I'll be gone too, and forever—into that other world of which you have no knowledge.

He said, very sharply, "Must you stand there like an idiot?" The word bit into her, shook her back into the present, the immediate.

"How can you so cheapen yourself, Abby? If you are not humiliated, I am, for you . . . sneaking out of your house to meet, to pursue this man."

She said, "You said you would not have him here."

"From now on," he said, unmoving. "I advise that you retire to your room, and get your personal belongings in readiness for the trip."

It was, she thought, fortuitous, and the perfect excuse. She could have trunks brought down, packed and labeled them, and leave them in Mrs. Gambel's care.

"All right," she said, and went on up the stairs. Wallace stood at the foot, looking up, frowning, after her.

IN SIZING up his problem, a declarer should always think of the vital matter of entries into his own hand or the dummy. Examining each suit for its possibilities along this line will sometimes disclose an entry, or at least a possible one, which was not at first apparent. That applies especially to the trump suit. One vital fact is the question of the hot card to use for ruffing when the declarer first gets the lead. It may pay him to use a fairly high trump so that he can keep a lower one than the dummy's highest.

MAMMOTH CAVE DEDICATED BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Famous Kentucky Cavern,
Discovered In 1799,
Draws Thousands

MAMMOTH CAVE, Ky., Sept. 19.—Mammoth Cave national park, 50,000 acres of beautiful, forested hill country famous for 125 years because of its giant caverns, officially was dedicated Wednesday in ceremonies postponed five years because of the war.

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug was principal speaker.

Dedication exercises originally were to be held immediately following date on which the land officially was acquired by the federal government in 1941, but were postponed during war years.

The cave, a tourist mecca for many years, was discovered in 1799 by a man named Houchin who was pursuing a bear, according to the information obtainable.

Before the coming of the white man, however, the cave was used by Indians. Several mummies, crude working tools, tree ladders, reed torches, moccasins and numerous other evidences of the prehistoric man's habitation were found within the cave.

The huge cavern played an interesting part in early American history. During the war of 1812, salt peter was leached from the petre-dirt in the cave and was used to make gunpowder. Last week it was predicted the cave, large enough to hold the entire population of Louisville, Ky., might become the world's largest bomb shelter in case of an atomic war.

Legislation authorizing the park's establishment as a national area was enacted in 1926. Land for the park was acquired by the state through the Kentucky national park commission, by donation from the Mammoth Cave National Park association and by direct purchase by the federal government.

Congress appropriates approximately $85,000 annually for operation of the park.

Thousands of persons annually make tours through the cave. The most impressive of the three tours is the all-day trip, which is seven miles, requires seven hours and includes dinner served in the cave. A total of 110,000 persons visited the cave the year preceding outbreak of war, and 50 percent of those were from out of state. Last year, however, only 62,000 toured the cavern.

ALARM CLOCKS, MATTRESSES IN ALGIERS NOW

Correspondent Tells How Americans Have Changed Romantic Town

BY ARNOLD DIBBLE

United Press Staff Correspondent ALGIERS, Sept. 19.—Toothless, tattooed girls now roam the streets of the Casbah, Algiers' native quarter, and the soft, weird music of native pipers has given way to "Juke Box Saturday Night," and the searing trumpet of Harry James.

Charles Boyer and Hedy Lammar wouldn't recognize the old place. Criminals abound, but they are definitely not romantic. The streets are still dark, but they are also dirty and full of insistent salesmen who wish to sell you inner-spring mattresses and wrist watches.

Rip-roaring American civilization has slipped into the Casbah like the viper into Eden. No longer are the Arabs awakened by prayers from minarets. American alarm clocks jangle just as in Chicago, or Evansville, Ind.

However, the winding lanes still offer sanctuary to criminals, as they did to Pepe Lemoco, whose dulcet "come with me to the Casbah" was of no use at all to Jack Benny.

What women there are wear American-designed clothes completely different, somehow, from those worn by Hedy Lammar. The men wear American suits and unromantic crooks have learned to slit the pockets with razor blades, American razor blades.

Some of the small French restaurants, which should be serving feather-weight souffles with wondrous sauces, now offer hot dogs with pickle and onion.

Scrawny native salesmen hawk mattresses to naval personnel who couldn't possibly use them. Civilians are attacked at night by youths who will kill you just for your clothes. Most Europeans carry swagger-sticks loaded at the end like a blackjack.

Algiers also presents a ticklish political situation. Arab demonstrations against the French are expected "at any time," according to some observers. American diplomats, however, say this is "alarmist speculation."

Western diplomats worry, principally, about the Arab Communists, and reports that they may take over the Arab "popular" party of Hedj Messali, an automobile mechanic who is the undisputed leader of 8,000,000 Algerian Arabs. Messali is now the "guest" of the French government in Paris. His return is believed to be conditioned upon whether he will promise to fight against Communist infiltration.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

But did she leave this to the Museum of Modern Art which she loved and which loves Picasso as she did in an ascetic triangle? She did not. She left it to a museum which would not take Picasso, which seeks to maintain a standard above commercialism—in short the Metropolitan museum. Her will specified the gift. Miss Stein must have realized in making her will that the great Fifty-Third street bazaar of chromium riches would have to send what little real art it has up to the Metropolitan to get into permanent artistic surroundings.

Most of junk presented by Moma will have a hard time gaining posterity in an abandoned basement, where it could more appropriately be hung now—and I do mean hung.

The point of all this is: we have the art, good art, the best art contemporaneously, and the cream of our past will compare proudly with a similar period in any national history. But our best is lost in loads of junk being passed off as art. We do not discriminate wisely, or at all in this fourth year of our art boom. We do not sufficiently advertise and promote our best. For myself, I would take Ekins' concert singer any day for five of Hogarth's shrimp girl, an Inness for a Constable, although I might want a couple of Blacklocks or Ryders for a Turner. Incidentally, did you ever see Gari Melchers sermon, bride or mother, from what is known as the Renoir period? Or compare Copley with the best European portraitists? Or did you ever even see a Melchers or a Copley?

Our art needs an advertising department. Moma has done a bad job.

Whisler—Mr. and Mrs. Bucher Reichelderfer and daughter of East Place, Ill. visited Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fox recently.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent uric acid passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

AAF TO SEEK NEW RECORDS IN SPEEDY PLANE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19--The Army Air Forces is "soupin' up" the engine and gutting the weight of a P-84 Thunderjet fighter and has set early October for its attempt to smash the world speed record.

The AAF this year has copped practically all the other air records there are, and now it is out to shatter the 516 miles per hour done by a British Gloster Meteor over a straightaway course.

A stock model P-84 did an unofficial 619 MPH at Muroc Army air base, Cal., last week. But to be considered by the National Aeronautic Association, a speed has to exceed the existing record by at least five miles an hour. A P-84 is being stripped down in an effort to insure 621 MPH or better.

Made by Republic Aviation Corp., Farmingdale, L. I., the P-84 Thunderjet is one of three new jet fighter planes to be conceived after the Bell P-59 and the Lockheed P-80 Shooting Star.

The first postoffice in the U. S., was organized in 1691, under a royal patent granted to Thomas Neale.

VETERANS MAY FACE DELAY IN GETTING PAID

Subsistence Allowances To Students, Workers Are Slow Getting Started

Pickaway county veterans of World War II who plan to enter school or job training this fall, under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights should be in position to meet their personal financial obligations for at least 60 days, as a safeguard against possible delay in payment of subsistence allowance, according to notification received Thursday by James Shea, county veterans' service officer, from the Veterans' Administration.

While the VA will make every effort to pay subsistence allowances promptly, there may be cases of some delay in payments due to the tremendous volume of work which will result from the start of a new school term. It is estimated that some 98,000 veterans will be enrolled in the colleges and universities this fall in this area including 54,000 in Ohio, 33,000 in Michigan, and 11,000 in Kentucky, the three states serviced by the Columbus branch office.

There is no provision in the G.I. Bill (Public Law 346) which permits the VA to make loans or advance subsistence payments to veterans commencing or taking educational or training courses. Under Public Law 16, which is the Vocational Rehabilitation Act for disabled veterans, a $1,500,000 revolving fund has been provided to make advancements not exceeding $100 in any case to disabled veterans who are entering training. The advancement must be repaid to the VA in installments.
